That Furball Puppy and Me By Carol Wallace, Bill Wallace

Here I am, a self-respecting kitten just trying to survive in a rat-eat-cat world, when the humans in my life start acting crazy. Something about the kids, and grandkids, coming to visit for Christmas. I would have run away had I known what that meant! Mama accusing me of tearing up the presents. Noisy voices and grabby little hands. I tell you, it's a dog's world. Bite my tongue! If the grandkids are bad, they're nothing compared to the gift the kids gave Mama for Christmas...a puppy!

Editorial Review

From School Library Journal

Grade 2-5-The young cat introduced in The Flying Flea, Callie, and Me (Minstrel, 1999) is back. It is Christmas, and Gray finds that decorated trees and packages are great playthings. Also, the children and grandkids are visiting, and there is a lot of excitement in the house. This means that everyone is too busy to play with a kitten. When the family gives Mama the gift of a new puppy, Gray's world really turns upside down. He is sure that the pup will get all of the attention, so he plays a trick on the dog and gets him banned from the house. Gray has second thoughts, though, when he realizes that the puppy has been put in the rat-infested barn. The plot revolves around such issues as fear, a new sibling, and doing the right thing. The simple vocabulary and nondemanding story line make it a good choice for readers just graduating to chapter books. One full-page, black-and-white cartoon illustration appears in each chapter.

Dumb furball. Everybody is cooing over this yappy puppy, who only wants to play. Why can't he settle down like me? We're both in the doghouse now. So I got him in trouble for tearing up the kitchen. Big deal. Problem is, I feel responsible. This puppy's headed for T*R*O*U*B*L*E. How can I save him? I can't even save myself!
